

Sadye Ruth Cole

August 16, 1958 - August 31, 2011

Sadye Ruth Cole, affectionately known to many as “BB.,” was born on August 16, 1958 in Chicago, Illinois to Lillie Cole and Willie Russell (deceased). The youngest of five sisters and brothers, Sadye accepted the Catholic faith at an early age and remained a devoted Christian until her untimely passing.

Upon graduating from Gage Park High School on the South Side of Chicago, Sadye studied cosmetology. After pursuing short-term careers at Montgomery Ward, the Chicago Transit Authority and Hertz Rental, she settled in to work for the United States Post Office 22 years.

Sadye was a diamond in the rough with a kind soul and “over the top” personality. Her baking skills created demands/expectations for her cookies whenever she gathered with family, friends and co-workers. She was an avid reader with a love for books written by African-American authors, and also enjoyed biking, bowling, darts, and any type of word puzzles. Her fondness for music and the latest electronic gadget was boundless.

Her fondness for music and electrical gadgets kept her on the look out for the newest in both Sadye peacefully made her transition at home on Wednesday, August 31, 2011. She leaves to cherish fond memories, her loving mother, Lillie M. Cole; sisters, Barbara J. and Beverly J. Cole; brothers, Gregory A. (Alicia) and Victor J. Cole; aunt, Pearl Johnson; longtime family friend, Earlene Willis and a host of dearly loved nieces, nephews, cousins, and friends.
